PATHS MEASURE.

Council at Tonight's Meeting.

HEWLETT IS ITS AUTHOR.

Robertson on Record for a Minority Report-Controversy With the Hackmen Again to the Fore.

The laws committee, with the exception of Robertson, last night came to the decision that it would report favorably on Hewlett's new bicycle ordinance at the council meeting tonight, after it had patched up the measure with a few amendments. In the sidewalks that are thrown open from Oct. 10th to May 31st South Temple street is restricted from State to G street, First South from Eighth East to First West, Second South to Eighth East and Third South to Fourth East. During the perfod mentioned wheelmen may use all of Fouth South street.

The bicycle tax proposed to be levied for the maintenance of cinder paths was amended to read $1 instead of 50 cents each per annum. Lamps will b ompulsory from one hour after sunset till one hour before sunrise, and these were the only changes proposed in the draft of the ordinance. Should it be-come a law bicycle paths will be built all over the city with the exception of the paved district.

Councilman Robertson's chief object tion to the ordinance was that no estimate of the cost of the proposed bicyle paths had been furnished. He wil make a minority report at tonight's council meeting and hopes to be able to block the passage of the measure.

The laws committee will recommend that certain parts of Second South, State, Third West and South Temple streets be used as public hack stands. Attorney J. F. Smith appeared before the committee for the hackmen, and C. B. Feit opposed it on behalf of the Groesbeck company. He said that a hackstand just north of the Kenyon and adjoining properties to the east would be a bad thing for the tenants of these properties. It would for one thing block the places of business on the south side of Second South. Mr. Smith appealed for what he termed the rights of the hackmen. He said that he appeared voluntarily and without fee ead for those backmen who had no stand for their cabs.

The question of placing advertising waste paper boxes at up-town corners was laid over till the committee meeting next Monday evening,

STRUCK BY FREIGHT TRAIN. Charles Bruce Has His Right Foot Split Very Severely.

Charles Bruce, an employe of Salt Lake Hardware company, had his right foot split at an early hour this morning by an Oregon Short Line freight engine. He was making his way home when a freight train came down upon him suddenly as he went to step across the track. His right foot was caught under a wheel and split from the toes to the heel. His screams of pain drew J. E. Stephens to the scene where he found Bruce lying near track. He promptly bound the limb to check the flow of blood and then called The injured man was re moved to the Holy Cross hospital, where he was attended by Dr. King. He is getting on as well as possible.

VISIT TO NAUVOO AND C RTHACE

It Will be Presented to the City Jail Where Joseph Smith Was Killed Used as Private Residence.

A CHANGE OF SENTIMENT.

The Tragedy is Now Looked Upon as a Cowardly Murder by Residents of Carthage-Blood Stains Remain.

Special Correspondence.

Nauvoo, July 25 .-- Anticipating that a few facts concerning the present condition and situation of Nauvoo, where the "Mormon" people were persecuted, mobbed and finally driven from in 1846, as also the City of Carthage, where the Prophet of the nineteenth century, together with his brother, sealed their testimonies with their blood, would be of interest to the readers of the "News," is my only reason for submitting the following:

While laboring in the Southern Illinois conference near Versailles, Brown ounty, with my companion, Elder W. Wilcox, we were favored with a visit from President F. S. Parkinson and his first assistant, B. M. Olson, and inasmuch as we were so near to the historical places, we thought it a good idea to take advantage of the opportunity and go and see for ourselves their present condition and to learn, if possible, the general feeling in regard to the acts of that people during the periods from 1844 to 1846, and further, to learn the general feeling of the present inhabitants of those cities towards our people as a whole.

Accordingly, on July 19th, 1901, Elders Parkinson, Olson and I boarded the train. At 10:30 a. m. we landed in Carthage, and went direct to court house, where the preliminary trial of Joseph and Hyrum Smith was held before Justice Smith on June 25th, 1844, two days previous to their martyrdom. The old court house is built entirely stone and was erected in the year 1833 and remains today with very few if any changes.

The next place of interest we visited was the old Carthage jail, which is now used as a private residence by Mr. and Mrs. Browning, relatives of the Browning Bros. Co. of Salt Lake City, and by paying a small fee we were permitted to go through it.

The bullet hole in the door, which was made by the first shot fired from the mob, and the shot which killed Hyrum, to be found, although daubed over with a little putty and paint. The blood stain about four feet east from the door where Hyrum fell is still on the floor, irrespective of the scrubbing and wear of the boards. The stain seems to have faded in the center, thereby leaving it in a rather ring

We had the pleasure of meeting a number of prominent citizens and aged veterans, and after conversing with them in regard to the tragedy of June 1844, we found, to our surprise, that the universal opinion seems to exist that it was a cowardly and unrighteous act, and they absolutely refuse to share the blame. They seem to be ashamed of it, and I am pleased to note that the prejudice which used to exist in that city against our people is almost abol-

We again took the train Saturday evening, after a pleasant day's visit in Carthage and finally arrived at Montrose, Iowa just across the river from Nauvoo. Here it was where five days previous to the assassination of Joseph and Hyrum, John Taylor and Willard Richards had crossed over from Nauvoo to consider the advisability of seeking a place of refuge for the Saints in the western wilderness. And here it was where he uttered the remarkable prophecy concerning the Saints being driven to the Rocky Mountains and finally becoming a mighty people. It was quite late when we arrived at Montrose. The ferry boats had stopped the night and as a consequence had to cross the enormous river, a dis-tance of one mile and a half, in a small flat boat. The evening was most beautiful and what seemed to add more pleasure to the voyage was the coo breeze which swept down the river, while the glorious old moon shed forth her light down upon the water as though she were too anxious to dispell the darkness of night and mark out a clear path to sail in. On the other side on a large bend of the river, was peacefully situated in a table land elevation, gradually ascending step by step from the river bank up the hill, the ancient city of the Saints-a most beautiful location for any city. Finally after thirty minutes tugging at the oars, we landed on the rocky shores of Nauvoo,

As the water was so nice and warm we could not resist the temptation and as a result we were soon paddling and swimming around in the river,

On our way to the hotel, a distance of we met a number of people who seem "Mormons," Of course we did not let on at first that we were "Mormons," they told us all they knew, and I think many things that they did not know. The proprietor, Mr. Wm. C. Reinbold, of the only hotel in Nauvoo, seems be very friendly towards the Elders and indeed a very generous and good hearted man. On Sunday morning he drove us over the city in a double surry He is very well acquainted with th city and as a consequence it made our trip more pleasant and profitable. Among the many points of interest we visited were the residences of Joseph Smith, Brigham Young, John Taylor, Wilford Woodruff, Lorenzo Snow, Geo. Q. Cannon, Orson Pratt, Parley Y Pratt, Daniel H. Wells, Sidney Rigdeon Wm. Marks, Heber C. Kimball, Oliver Cowdery, Joseph Young. The oldest house in the city, which still stands today was built in 1837, by one Thos. C. White. The residence of Joseph Smith was a very common structure and very common structure, and was occupled by him until the completion of the Monsion House, when Hyrum n Joseph's residence and Joseph into the Monsion, and thus they remained until the martyrdom. We also visited the old match factory, which is almost ready to tumble down: the Nauvo house; the old 70's hall, and a number of old store buildings and many other points of interest too numerous to men-

A few little old shacks mark the place where the temple once stood, while the stone from the same have been put into number of other buildings. Among the many, I make mention of the Nauvoo jail; the Methodist church of Nauvoo, as also one of the largest dwelling places in the city, are all built entire

One characteristic of the old "Mor-mon" dwellings, I noticed with marked interest, was that they were very large and durable. A number of them have three and four stories, capable of ac comodating a multitude of people. Joseph Young's house has 18 or 19 rooms; been built to stay. It plainly shows to the whole world that the "Mormon" Church from its infancy has had a band of thrifty and industrous men and women. Most all of the large structures were built in the early forties. We next drove out along the la road that the Prophet and his brother ever trod in Nauvoo. It was the old road they followed when on their way to meet their fate. We finally arrived at the old "Mormon" cemetery situated off on a hill about 2 miles southeast of the city. This we found to be in a very bad condition. A forest of trees has grown up among the graves since the Saints left, and cattle, no doubt have been running among the head stones, knocking them down and break ing them up until very few stand erect ome trees over two feet in diameter have grown on some of the graves. Of late years Joseph Smith, president of the Re-organized church, has done a very good and thoughtful act by plac ing a wire fence around the grave yard thus preventing it from further damage

Today Nauvoo is inhabited by about thirteen hundred people, mostly all Germans. The Catholic element seems to prevail. The grape crop seems to Nauvoo's greatest product. There is very little prejudice existing in that city against our people, taking everything into consideration, and the peo ple as a whole seem to voice the senti-ment that had the "Mormons" stayed there, today Nauvoo would have another Chicago. And then methinks "Of all sad words of tongue or pen, The sadest are these: It might have
